Innovative Teaching Grants Helps Students Learn
Science Through Art

The Grandview Education Foundation Grant program provides the opportunity for employees to enhance the educational experience for students in their school.

Through an Innovative Teaching Grant awarded to her by the GEF, Adryan Steinberg, a Visual Arts Teacher at Meadowmere Elementary, was able to teach 5th graders about raw wool through her Felted Landscapes project.

Students were introduced to how wool is sheared from sheep, washed, prepared into raw roving, and developed into yarn and wool. They learned the anatomy of wool and it's physical reactions to water, and then explored the art of felting and fiber arts. Applying their new found knowledge, students created their own compositions using raw wool roving to create a felt masterpiece.
